The 10th Annual Meeting of the International Association of Agricultural Economists was held in London, England, from September 10-14, 1967. The meeting was attended by approximately 100 delegates from 25 different countries.

The main theme of the meeting was the role of agriculture in economic development. The delegates discussed the various factors that influence agricultural growth and development, including land, labor, capital, and technology.

The meeting also focused on the challenges facing agriculture in the developing world. Delegates discussed the need for improved agricultural practices, increased investment in agricultural research and development, and the importance of fair trade policies.

The meeting was a success and provided a valuable opportunity for delegates to share their experiences and ideas.
